Many families in the Central NE area participate in genetic & cognitive research testing at the Heredity neurological Disease Center in Wichita Kansas. They receive support services, counseling, and participate in support groups as well. Research is happening now to stop this defective gene, as well as a study to help those with Huntington's manage symptoms and allow for a better quality of life. One of the newest studies being done is treatment to delay the onset of the disease. Just imagine how this can affect those families with this gene. Once again, any type of donation is appreciated!
